although skin contact with the product is unlikely, if this occurs the exposed area should be washed immediately, as these types of substances may be absorbed through the skin