blood tests revealed that curcumin was detectable in nine of 24 plasma samples, all 24 urine samples, and in the colonic mucosa of all 23 biopsied participants

as more people came to acknowledge depression as an illness, more people sought drug therapy

as more people came to acknowledge depression as an illness, more people sought drug therapy