As all states are using their best tactics to safeguard their state and they are compelled for sure to strengthen their armies considering the reformations by the other states too.

India is a state which has been maintaining its relations very cordially with its neighbours as well as with the other states too but as it sees the prevailing threats and challenges to its National Security. Having one of the biggest borders on its land India needs a very robust Army which is already but it's high time to add more and more latest technologies to its operations by strengthening the Land Warfare. It is the need of the hour that the entire Army should be very well equipped with all the latest Technologies.
